Get them emailed over to Ron Lawson at rlsaddle@verizon.net This information is very valuable to the organization to help get things done. There is sad news regarding the mules in the Grand Canyon, if you haven't heard yet. In 2009 the mule access in the Grand Canyon National Park was up for review. An article appeared in the Western Horsemen Magazine. It was Mules of the Grand Canyon. A new Stock Use Plan highlights the challenges of battling for equestrian trail access on public lands. Here is just a bit of information as quoted in the article. "In 2009, News broke that mule access in the Grand Canyon National Park was up for review. A knock-down, drag-out battle ensued that lasted the better part of two years. When the dust settled, mules had been relegated off the very trails their predecessors had helped construct a century earlier. The verdict came down on January 5, 2011, when the National Park Service announced a new Stock Use Plan. The NPS stated that mule access would continue at "historically high levels," albeit on different trails than before." (There is copy of the magazine article on our website at www.RedshankRiders.com.) I will cherish my mule trip to the bottom of the Grand Canyon that I took a couple years ago! Thanks to all that worked on the membership ride that we had to postpone until spring, due to weather. We will be ahead of the game when we are ready to get going on the fundraiser. I can't believe it is almost 2012. Our Unit has accomplished so many things this year. My hope is we keep this great forward motion into the upcoming year. This has been accomplished by a lot of people volunteering their time and expertise. We need to remember why we are doing what we do. We are helping keep trails open. Everyone can contribute. Maybe it is going to County meetings, helping coordinate fundraisers, being on committees, being on the Redshank board, working with the agencies, doing trail work, mapping trails, packing supplies for work crews, scouting trails for possible work details. It is all important. This is a volunteer organization and I am so thankful for all the volunteers. We use this to make new friends, share riding experiences, go new places and make the world a better place than we started with. We are to be ambassadors of the trails. We need to share with others really what all we do for the entire equestrian community. If you want to do more than ride on your own property, get active and ask what can I do to help Backcountry Horseman of California achieve keeping trails opened to all stock users. Mark your calendar for our packing clinic dated Jan 15th. BCHC pack clinic. Learn the basics of pack stock handling, load balancing, saddling, and proper hitches. We will have a trail course set up to test your skills, pack mules provided. Lunch will be provided. There is no charge. Must be a BCHC Member. Please RSVP Ph: 951 760-9255 or mike@stumblinranch.com	(Continued on page 2)

I received a call from Chip to look into the subject of Long Valley. I have been reading thru the documents of the draft Long Valley Management Plan in the San Jacinto State Park. It is available for review and public comment closing Dec 16th by contacting Luke Serna, Park & Recreation Specialist 8885 Rio San Diego Dr, suite 270 San Diego, Ca. 92108 or email lserna@parks.ca.gov. The website that I have been looking at documents on is the following, http://www.parks.ca.gov/?page_id=25592 Long Valley Creek enters Long Valley from the west, its upper headwaters beginning at San Jacinto Peak and Jean Peak before flowing through Tamarack Valley and Round Valley. Once in the Valley, Long Valley Creek takes a southward turn then exits the Valley at the southern end before turning eastward and cascading down San Jacinto Mountain toward the Coachella Valley. Long Valley is in the first place the visitors from the tram come to. Some of the program overview is they are relocating visitor center, constructing a new ranger station, a multi -purpose outdoor activity area, improved kiosk, improve trail by moving them away from sensitive resources while improving access., construct a small equestrian staging area with corrals and water for 6 horses, replace pathway from tramway including access for disabled and medical transport.

The January 2012 meeting will be held at Little Red Schoolhouse in Anza on Hwy 371 on Thursday the 12th at 7pm..

I hope everyone has a Merry Christmas and a Wonderful New Year!!! Enjoy all your family and friends. See you all at the Christmas ride and Party at Carol's. (Flyer on pg 7).

Life's short, ride often!!! It'll keep ya sane. Cya on the trails, Stacy Trail Classification that BCHA/BCHC has been pushing the units to ensure that the trails that are classified will accommodate pack and saddle stock. Ann Lange, BCHA National Director handed out a massive National Forest System Trails Data Report at the State Board Meeting in October. Ann suggested the units that have not completed the task of verifying the data on the report, needs to make the effort to complete their area of work and get with the FS as soon as possible.

The lawsuit that BCHA filed against the Forest Service regarding the new trail classification system was to ensure that we did not lose our access to lands and trails that we equine users have historically used in the past. The result of that lawsuit was an agreement by the Forest Service and BCHA to work together on a local basis to clear up any areas that were a possible problem.

I will be reviewing the Forest Service information on trails that we would never have been able to access in the past. It has now come down to the responsibility of the local units to get together with the Forest Service in their area to clear up any items of concern. Ann Lange has brought back from BCHA a listing of trails for the forests here in California, which includes how those trails are classified by the Forest Service. Each unit has reviewed the list and will take action as might be necessary to resolve items of concern. At the BCHC meeting in January 2012 in Visalia, each unit to report on their progress with the disposition of this project

RE: A copy of the HR41 Beauty Mountain Wilderness statement from Mike Pool, deputy Director of BLM on October 25,2011 is in this issue of newsletter on page 4.

You should have received the BCHA newsletter for the Fall of 2011. On page 9, the article Seeing Red by Dennis Dailey, Senior Advisor Wilderness, Recreation, and Trails discusses the use of / non use of chainsaws in the Wilderness. Dennis suggests that we take the step of addressing this with the proper person in a letter this winter if you believe you have a need for chainsaw use in the wilderness. In the article Dennis refers to House Report 95-540. if anyone would like me to email them a copy I have the 30 page report.

Newsletter: "Tails of the Trail" is our new masthead artwork donated by Rhonda. 30 copies are still being printed and mailed at great expense. There was discussion about what to do about that. Stacy suggested a fundraiser to off-set the cost. Pete volunteered to call all of the recipients of the mailed copies to see if it is necessary. The prize to Bob Jones for naming the newsletter will be a bag of feed.

Historian: No report

Unfinished Business: Stacy asked who had tools or other items that belong to the unit that need to be stored in the trailer. Audrey recorded a list. Pete read to us a list of tools that we have been given by the San Diego Trails Council to work on the Riding & Hiking Trail. They are disbanding and there will most likely be more coming to us from them. Ron needs our volunteer hours! email to: rlsaddle@verizon.net

New Business: There is an opportunity to participate in a fundraiser for all units to sell calendars with chances to win prizes. As the investment and risks are high, we decided not to get involved in this opportunity.

Statement of Mike Pool, Deputy Director Bureau of Land Management, Department of the Interior House Natural Resources Committee, Subcommittee on National Parks, Forests, and Public Lands H.R. 41, Beauty Mountain and Agua Tibia Wilderness Act of 2011 October 25, 2011

Thank you for inviting the Department of the Interior to testify on H.R. 41, the Beauty Mountain and Agua Tibia Wilderness Act of 2011. H.R. 41 significantly expands the Beauty Mountain Wilderness established by the Omnibus Public Land Management Act (P.L. 111-11). The Department welcomes the opportunity to enhance protection for this important area and supports this wilderness expansion. We would also like the opportunity to work with the sponsor and the Committee on minor and technical amendments to the bill, and note that the BLM can administratively accomplish the placement of recreational facilities described in the bill. The Department defers to the Department of Agriculture regarding the expansion of the Agua Tibia Wilderness involving National Forest System Lands.

Background

The Omnibus Public Land Management Act (P.L. 111-11) designated the Beauty Mountain Wilderness on 15,600 acres of public lands managed by the Bureau of Land Management (BLM) in Riverside County, California. This designation constituted the northern half of the Beauty Mountain Wilderness Study Area (WSA) within Riverside County; the law did not address the southern half of Beauty Mountain within San Diego County.

The Beauty Mountain area supports a rich complement of wildlife species because of its location within the transition zone from the oak woodlands and mountain chaparral of the eastern edge of the Peninsular Range to the creosote bush scrub at the western edge of the Colorado Desert. Home to several threatened or endangered desert species, these public lands enhance important wildlife corridors and landscape connections to the expansive Anza Borrego Desert State Park. Within an hour's drive of the major population centers of San Diego and Riverside, this area is a popular destination for a variety of dispersed outdoor recreational activities including camping, hiking, horseback riding and hunting.

41 enlarges the existing Beauty Mountain Wilderness by approximately 14,000 acres. The expansion of the wilderness area is critical to maintain open space and to protect this significant area of chaparral, canyons and forest in northern San Diego County. In 2007 and 2008, the BLM testified in support of the wilderness designation of Beauty Mountain, but noted that the southern boundary of the area was arbitrarily cut off at the county line. We welcome the completion of this wilderness area provided for in this legislation.

41 represents several years of collaborative effort by Representative Issa that involved close coordination with elected officials, environmental organizations, community groups, adjacent landowners, and concerned individuals in San Diego County. Representative Issa worked diligently to seek consensus on the wilderness expansion from all segments of the public as well as private landowners adjacent to the wilderness.

There are several minor amendments to H.R. 41 that we would like to address. First, the BLM prepared a new map for Congressman Issa last year, dated March 2, 2010. This map more accurately reflects current land status showing the recent acquisition of private lands (largely through donation to the Federal government) within the proposed wilderness area. We recommend that the bill be updated to reference the new map from 2010, which reflects a wilderness addition of just over 14,000 acres.

Additionally, the BLM would like the opportunity to work on technical language modifications for consistency with other wilderness legislation. Finally, while we do not object to the intent of section 201 regarding the placement of recreational facilities such as a campground, parking areas and related facilities on adjacent lands, we prefer that these proposals be analyzed through the land management planning process, which includes public input and review. We request that it not be included in legislative language as it may reduce the agency's flexibility in the future. The BLM recommends that these issues instead be addressed in Committee report language.

Conclusion

Thank you again for the opportunity to testify in support of the provisions of H.R. 41 regarding the expansion of the Beauty Mountain Wilderness. I will be happy to answer any questions. (article submitted by Stacy Kuhns)

Fuller Ridge: With an early snow coming to the local mountains, the San Jacinto State Park/Fuller Ridge project has wrapped up for the season with all the gear being packed out at the end of October. According to Sam Commarto, in two years of work, they are barely half done with the project. With three more years of funding, there will be many more opportunities to join in with pack-ins and outs and the many re-supply trips during the summer. This would be a great project to get started packing on with a good area's to load and unload along with a very good trail and plenty of help. It's about a 13 mile round trip with traffic control where we cross hwy 243 at trail head. Add to that the crew really shows their appreciation both verbally and in action. The cook fixes lunch when we get there and some of the crew helps unload and load. One trip we even had some of the crew stay in camp till we got there so they could "meet the packers", after having done that they donned their packs and headed for the to the project. We are looking forward to helping once again next year.

Congress Urged to Protect 134,000 Public Acres In and Near the Pass

reprinted from article by Guy McCarthy 11-11-2011

Department of Interior Secretary Ken Salazar recommended Thursday that Congress approve the proposed Sand to Snow National Monument, which includes Whitewater Canyon and Southern California's highest point, San Geronio Mountain. A proposal to create a 134,000-acre "Sand to Snow National Monument" on public lands in and near the San Geronio Pass received backing Thursday from the Department of Interior and the Bureau of Land Management. Department of Interior Secretary Ken Salazar recommended Thursday that Congress approve monument protection for the area, which includes Whitewater Canyon and Southern California's highest point, San Geronio Mountain. The lands also include the entire San Geronio Wilderness, Sonoran desert, and Big Morongo Canyon. They border three Wildlands Conservancy preserves, the Morongo Valley community, and the west end of Joshua Tree National Park.

Including lands already designated as wilderness in a national monument benefits neighboring lands and communities, said David Myers, executive director of the Wildlands Conservancy in Oak Glen. "When you elevate a wilderness area to national monument status it gains more national stature and helps promote tourism," Myers said in a phone interview Friday. "This proposal also affords higher levels protection for other BLM and Forest Service lands outside the wilderness area.

"It's important to note it does not impact any private lands," Myers said. The Sand to Snow National Monument will likely be the most diverse national monument in the lower 48 states, Myers said.

"Where else do you have a desert river, desert forest with pinyon pine, juniper, Joshua trees, transitional black oak and canyon oak forests, oak woodlands, chaparral, and conifer forests with incense cedar, white fir, ponderosa pine, and alpine terrain?" Myers said. "There would be nearly 10,000 feet elevation change in this one national monument." The proposed Sand to Snow monument is one of three BLM areas in Southern California referred to Congress by Salazar, an appointee of President Barack Obama.

The other areas are the proposed Beauty Mountain area, which bridges Riverside and San Diego counties east of Temecula, and the proposed Mojave Trails National Monument, north of Twenty-nine Palms in northeast San Bernardino County.

Salazar's recommendation to Congress on Thursday includes areas in eight other states. "Basically, the Obama administration is stating it will support a public lands bill that combines proposals and legislation for all these areas," Myers said.

In letters dated Nov. 10, 2011, Salazar urged leaders of the House and Senate to consider "significant local support" for the Sand to Snow National Monument and other proposed protection areas, and to "take action on the proposals." California Sen. Dianne Feinstein's bill to create the Sand to Snow National Monument and Mojave Trails National Monument is known as the California Desert Protection Act of 2011.
